More about the FENS2023 program...

FENS2023 will include plenary lectures, scientific symposia, industry symposia, oral communications sessions, poster sessions, and an educational programme as well as an opening lecture and an award lecture. There will be an opening party and a gala dinner.

FENS2023 will be hosted in the newly refurbished Sava Centre with several hotels nearby.

Opening lecture from five south-east European countries: Nutrition-related health risks in the Western Balkans

Plenary speakers are:

- ✓ Walter Willett (The search for veritas: enhancing dietary trials and observational studies),
- ✓ Corinna Hawkes (Facilitating food system transformation),
- ✓ Joao Breda (The role of diet and nutrition to ensure high-quality health systems for all),
- ✓ Ellen Blaak (Can nutrition interventions be personalised according to metabolic phenotypes?)
- ✓ Dirk Haller (Unravelling the complexity of the gut microbiota).

FENS itself has organised 20 symposia around 10 tracks.

The FENS Presidential Symposium will summarise the achievements of the FENS activity around "Ensuring trust in the science of nutrition". Alongside the FENS-organised symposia, member societies, other organisations and universities have organised symposia (22 so far confirmed with others promised). Full details of confirmed symposia can be found on the conference website under the "Scientific information" tab. This shows the amazing selection of topics on offer and the impressive line-up of invited speakers from right across Europe and beyond.

Check-out the program on the website.

FENS2023 has the ambition to be THE nutrition conference of 2023 – don't miss out on being there!

Only 30 days left to the abstract deadline!
